MEMORANDUM

January 3, 2010

TO: Board of Mayor and Aldermen

FROM: Eric Stuckey, City Administrator
Vernon Gerth, ACA - Community and Economic Development
Gary Luffman, Building & Neighborhood Services Director

SUBJECT: Consideration of Ordinance 2011-02 regarding the method used to calculate building permit fees for detached, single-family dwellings.

Purpose

Ordinance 2011-02 changes the current method of calculating building permit fees for detached, single-family dwellings from construction value to a fee based on habitable square footage.

Background

The City of Franklin presently calculates building permit fees based on the value of construction. Since the value of construction varies greatly on the contractor and structure amenities, staff proposes to base building permit fees for new, detached single-family dwellings and additions, on the habitable square footage. The habitable square footage is easily calculated and there would be no need for staff to question the applicant's value of construction.

In November, staff presented the Board of Mayor and Alderman an analysis of recently issued building permits within Franklin and surrounding communities. The analysis adjusted permit fees based on square footage and revealed that Franklin charges the equivalent of .37 per square foot permit fee for new, detached single-family residential dwellings. Implementing the proposed building permit fee based on square footage provides a clear and predictable fee methodology for staff and our customers.

Financial Impact

The proposed change should not result in a change in building permit revenue. It will however, allow staff to routinely forecast building permit revenue based on anticipated residential development activity and approved dwelling types as compared it to the corresponding inspection service level.

Recommendation

A motion to approve is recommended.
